OPC SPECTACULAR TO MAKE TELEVISION HISTORY

An extravaganza to make television history is taking shape for the Producers' Showcase Monday, December 13, when RCA and the Ford Motor Company will present "Dateline", the NBC-TV spectacular marking the dedication of the OPC Memorial Center honoring those correspondents who lost their lives overseas while on assignment. NBC producer for the Producers' Showcase series is Fred Coe, to whose credit are such outstanding successes as Television Playhouse and "Mr. Peepers". OPC'er JACK RAYEL is executive producer for NBC.

The name of Marian Anderson has been added to the list of artists, including Bob Hope, Eddie Fisher, Sid Caesar, Peggy Lee and Richard Rodgers.

The coast-to-coast program, from 8 to 9:30 p.m. EST, will be televised in color. Because of the lighting required, the producers expect that most of the show will emanate from studios in New York and Hollywood. However, they hope to have at least one scene in the Memorial Press Center.

PART HARTWELL, chairman of the House Operations Committee, reports that the Correspondent's Fund has enlisted the professional services of Eileen Lange to work on plans for the show. Miss Lange, former magazine director at NBC, will be working at the clubhouse full time on problems of telecasting and related matters until the grand opening. Members with questions concerning the show can contact her.

LARRY BLOCHMAN and his Hospitality Committee are working on plans for the Club's celebration of the event. The Public Relations Committee is working closely with NBC's press department to promote a record audience for the TV program. NBC has suggested that local TV shows plan some feature during the week preceding December 13 to honor newsmen who served (and died) overseas.

HAL BOYLE, the AP columnist, just back from revisiting the scene of "The Battle of the Bulge, Ten Years Afterward" will be the guest of honor at the Club's second weekly open house Tuesday evening, Nov. 23.

The party starts with cocktails from 5 to 7 pm. Those who can stay for dinner are asked to make reservations. The door fee of $1.00 includes the first drink. Dinner is offered at $2.50, including tip and tax.

The hospitality committee launched its series of open house nights last week with a successful party honoring Past President LOUIS LOCHNER. Those who came early this week can hear HAL's personal report on his trip.

STREIBERT URGES SUPPORT OF USIA

Theodore Streibert, director of the United States Information Agency, cited cases at an OPC luncheon Thursday, Nov. 11, to show that the program is giving Soviet propagandists a run for their money. But he estimated that the U.S. would have to spend something like $800,000,000 a year to equal the Soviet expenditure on foreign propaganda.

As an example, he recalled the success of "This Is Cinerama" at the Damascus International Trade Fair this summer and announced that it will be shown again at the Bangkok fair opening December 7. There is a report that the Soviet Union decided not to participate when it heard about the competition, he said.

Streibert stressed that he is seeking the assistance of professionals with "skill and technique" to make the information program a success, and he suggested that alumnus of the effort could give valuable advice. He acknowledged that the lengthy security clearance procedure creates difficulty in recruiting personnel and said that he was trying to work out an arrangement whereby applicants would be guaranteed employment subject to security clearance. This would overcome complaints that applicants have waited six months for a security clearance only to be told that the vacancy no longer existed.
